

EUROPEAN HEMATOLOGY
ASSOCIATION

- Are you a hematologist in training or have you just finished your training?
- Looking for an online course to improve your knowledge in specific areas in hematology?
- Interested in a learning experience with trainees from all over Europe?

Join EHA Bite Size Master Class now!

What is it?

The EHA Bite Size Master Class is an online group learning experience for hematologists nearing completion of their training or who have just finished their training. The course is aimed to contribute to the harmonization and quality enhancement of hematology training across Europe.

The Bite Size Master Class specifically targets educational gaps by offering only one problem-based exercise focusing on a single topic from the European Hematology Curriculum.

The mentees are expected to solve problems related to complex and challenging cases presented by international experts. Each group is made up of 5-6 mentees of varying nationalities and a mentor, who facilitates communication and monitors mentees' contribution. The Bite Size Master Class runs over a period of six weeks and is free of charge.

When does it start?

In February 2015 EHA kicks off two parallel online Bite Size Master Class Courses on the following topics:

1. Thrombosis, Thrombophilia and Anticoagulation
2. Thalassemia

How does it work?

A typical Master Class case covers a four-week study period (plus two weeks of reporting). New information with questions is posted each week on an online discussion platform. Mentees are expected to discuss the problem stated in the case within the group and to propose a solution. Discussion is always supported by the mentor. The group needs to submit an interim and a final case written report. The case author reflects on the reports in an interactive online feedback session and submits written comments.

What's in in for you?

1. Learn from international opinion leaders in hematology
2. Personal approach: small groups of fellow hematology trainees with a mentor
3. Immediate feedback on your contribution by professionals
4. Experience new, evidence-based and exciting ways of learning
5. Expand your international professional network
6. EHA Mater Class will be EHA-CME accredited – claim your CME points upon successful completion!

Application information

For enrolment to the program please send your CV and a letter of recommendation from your National Society to the EHA Executive Office at education@ehaweb.org.

To secure your place on one of the upcoming Bite Size Master Class courses please apply before January 9, 2015.

For more information please go to www.ehaweb.org

Meet our graduated trainees!

'It has been a great experience that opened the door to another way of learning. I have met great colleagues who were really engaged with the cases as if they were from a real patient. The fact that we were having the feedback session with case author was really motivating'

Mariane Villegas, Sweden

'The group learning experience was fantastic and very motivating. I always considered myself a bit of an "better-by-myself-learner", but the exchange with different opinions was very inspiring'

Christian Eimermacher, Germany